One day suddenly, Laxmi had a doubt. "How many people actually keep valuable things in a heap of rubbish? If that someone could keep the most amazing thing in the rubbish is obviously, he is not a miser but a hero. That only means that he has something more valuable than that! And Lord Shiva told you to get the most valuable thing he possesses, but you got this!"

It was a HOT
day. Ramu began the long journey to his uncle's village.

On the way, Ramu saw a huge banyan tree spreading its branches, welcoming him to rest under its shade.

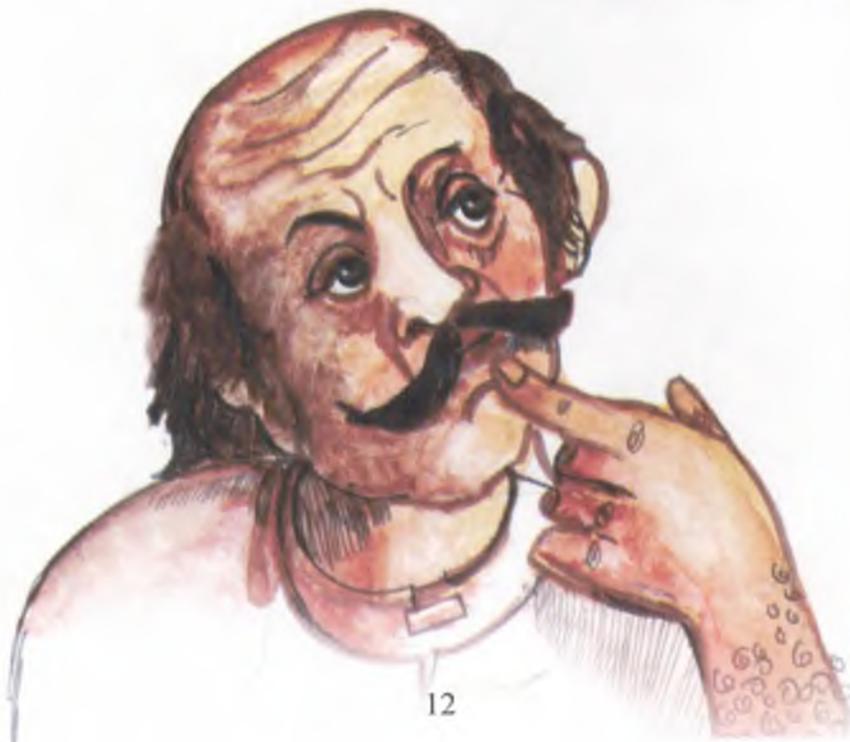

Ramu lay down on the cool grass, reveling in the shade of the old banyan.

As he rested,
he looked up
at the branches
of the tree.
He noticed
the tiny fruit on the huge banyan.

He said to himself,
“I believed that the great Lord is the most intelligent of all. But why did He create a huge banyan tree with such small fruits!”

He thought of the pumpkin creeper in his backyard.
The creeper
was slender but its

fruit was so BIG!

He thought,

‘Surely the Lord has made a big mistake! The huge tree MUST have large fruits and the small plants, tiny fruits.’

The cool breeze and the soothing shade of the banyan tree slowly lulled Ramu into a deep slumber, when suddenly..

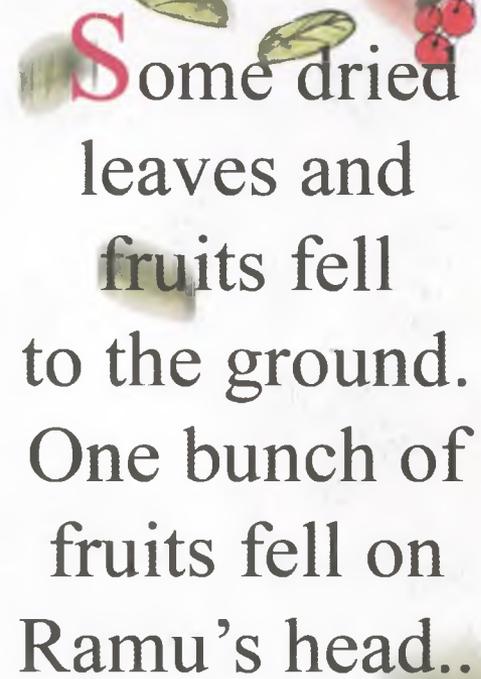

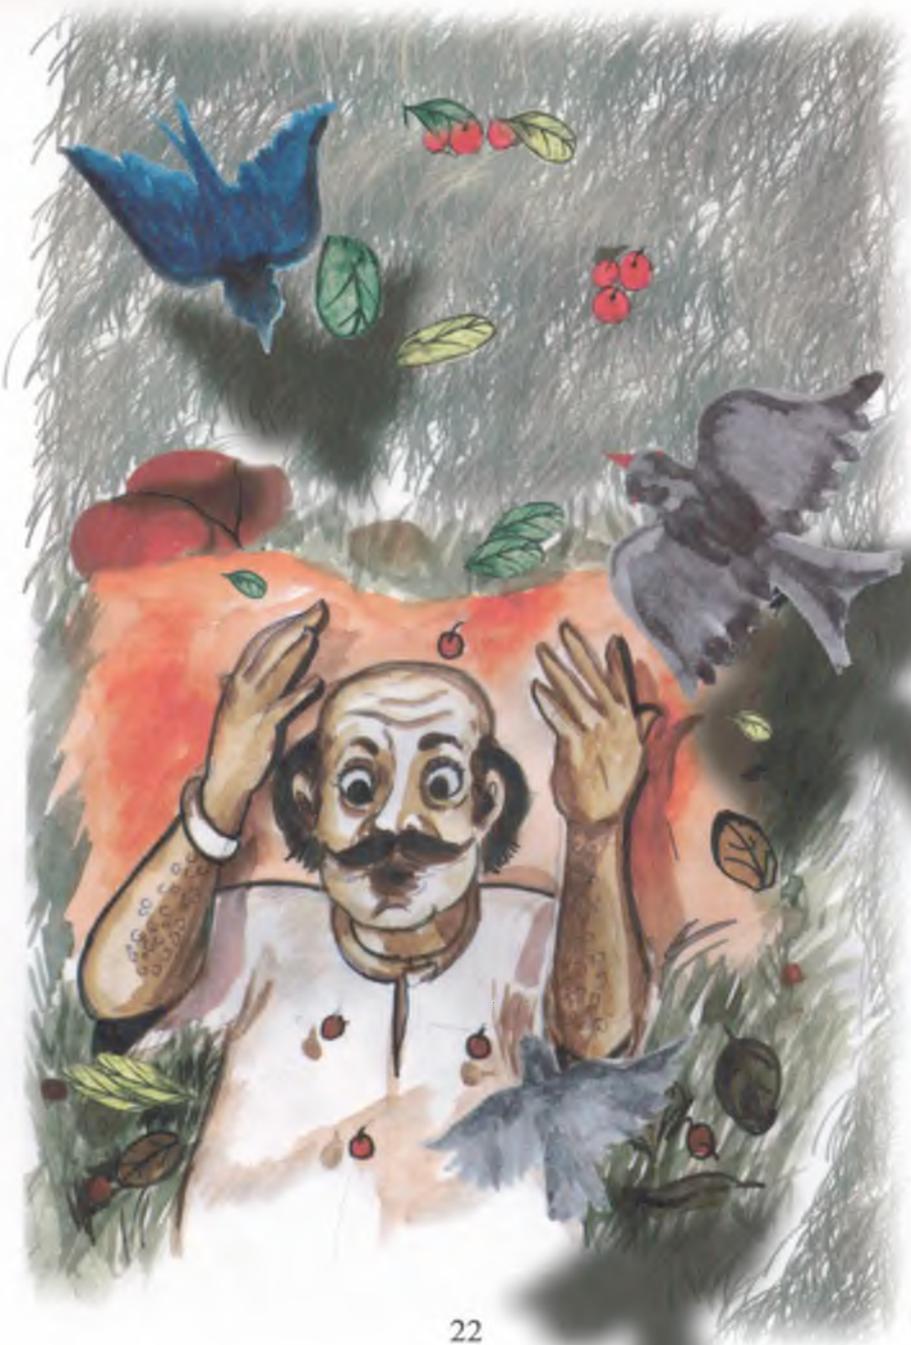

The

blew harder.

It became stronger
and swifter.

The branches
of the banyan
began to shake.

Some dried leaves and fruits fell to the ground.
One bunch of fruits fell on Ramu's head..

He awoke
with a start
and shook with fright as he wondered what had hit him.
He thought,
“If it had been bigger, I would have been hurt badly!”
